

FRENCH CABINET MEETS WHILE THE ARMISTICE DELEGATION GIVES FRANCE'S ANSWER TO THE GERMANS

French Delegation Returns To Compeigne After Spending The Night in Paris — To Resume Deliberations With General Keitel

(By International News Service)

BORDEAUX, France, June 22—The French cabinet met at 8.30 a. m. today, while the armistice delegation at Compeigne gave France's answer to the German armistice details.

COMPIEGNE, France, June 22—In forming a return reply to German's "yes or no" armistice details, the delegates of defeated France returned to Compeigne, after spending the night in Paris.

Before they came back to continue their deliberations with General Keitel, German chief of staff, on the conditions for ceasing the war on continental Europe, the French delegation conferred by telephone with the government at Bordeaux.

It was 10 o'clock this morning when the French came back to this scene of French triumph, 22 years ago.

General Keitel and his aides immediately reached the famous World War railway coach, where the negotiations are in progress, after the French were allowed to consult among themselves. This consultation lasted for 1½ hours. At its conclusion the Germans returned and all filed back into the converted dining car where Marshal Foch's headquarters were in 1918 and which Hitler is now going to take back to Berlin as a symbol of Nazi victory.

Upon its return to Compeigne this morning, the military and civilian members of the French delegation were accompanied by five secretaries. It was assumed that they already had prepared or would prepare a formal answer to Hitler's three-fold armistice demand, designed to immobilize France from further war and make Germany's western neighbor a base for military operations against England.

ZURICH, June 22—A report from the Italian official communique today, said that 70 British war planes successfully bombed industrial places at Lacco and Badella and that allied bombs also destroyed gasoline dumps at Venice.

BERLIN, June 22—Heavy civilian casualties in a series of British raids on German cities were announced today.

Eight persons were killed and 16 persons were injured when 74 incendiary bombs were dropped on numerous military objectives at Cologne and its suburbs, the announcement said.

Three men, three women, and one child were injured during a raid on the Babelsberg section of outer Berlin.

ROME, June 22—Military consultation between Italy and France in order to settle Italian claims after the armistice has been concluded at Compeigne will be held on Italian soil, it was stated in Rome today.

Advice that these meetings be held at St. Jean De Marneville, or other places in France associated with "broken allied promises to Italy" after the last war were rejected. Italian soil was chosen by the Italians "as no need to wipe out memories of military humiliation" was necessary. (A treaty promising Italy vast concessions for abandoning Germany and fighting with the allies was signed at St. Jean De Marneville in 1915.)

Italian troops are already on French soil and according to reports are advancing despite a difficult terrain.

BERLIN, June 22—(INS)—Enemy planes raided Babelsberg, the "German Hollywood," and caused air raid warnings in Berlin today as the Reich awaited either French acceptance or rejection.

DEATH ENDS CAREER OF GENERAL BUTLER

Twice Decorated With The Congressional Medal of Honor

SERVED FOR 33 YEARS

PHILADELPHIA, June 22—(INS)—Death today had ended the career of Major General Smedley D. Butler, twice decorated with the Congressional Medal of Honor, whose 33 years as a United States Marine was punctuated with dramatic episodes and heroic feats.

General Butler died late yesterday in Philadelphia Naval Hospital. He was 59. He had entered the hospital for a routine physical check-up following a lecture tour and it was found he was suffering from an abdominal ailment.

General Butler, known as the "Fighting Quaker," had been retired from the Marine Corps since 1931. During his active service he saw duty in Cuba, the Philippines, Central America, Mexico, China, the West Indies and the World War in France.

His penchant for mining no words once caused the United States to apologize to Premier Mussolini and another time brought him before a Congressional investigating committee probing a charge he had been asked to head a veterans' army in revolt against the New Deal Administration of President Roosevelt.

For a time he headed the police department of Philadelphia and his "house cleaning" of the city was effective but political pressure led to his resignation. He is survived by his wife, one daughter and two sons.

"Man's search for the best means of keeping records of his thoughts and actions has resulted in the use of many different mediums, the most useful of which is paper.

"Ancient records were made on the leaves and bark of trees, and on stone and metal tablets. You will recall Moses and the Ten Commandments which were recorded on slabs of stone. The skins of animals, particularly fish and serpents were used. The British Museum contains the lettered skin of a human being. Later came the use of papyrus, a reedlike plant growing along the Nile and extensively used from 3500 B. C. to the year 1000 A. D. Eighteen hundred rolls of papyrus manuscripts were brought to light at the excavations of the city of Heracleum, and many recent explorers in eastern lands have found similar records in the Tombs of Egypt and the Ancient Holy Lands.

"Paper making as it is known today, from fibrous pulp suspended in water was first found about 123 B. C. in China, and in 794 A. D. at the capture of Samarkand by the Arabians, the Chinese were found making paper from raw cotton.

"The art was introduced into Europe by the Moors about 1090, and the Spanish cities of Toledo and Valencia were noteworthy for their paper making.

"France, Germany and Italy all made paper long before it was taken to England, probably in the 14th century.

"Not until 1685 did the industry become permanently established, by the scattering of the secret knowledge of the French Huguenots all over the world.

"The Bank of England Mill was established by Huguenot refugees and remained in the same family some 200 years.

"The first mill in America was started in 1690 at Bridesburg, by a Dutchman named Rittenhouse, where 2500

GIVEN AMPLE NOTICE

Thursday evening a meeting of the Water Committee of Borough Council was held for the primary purpose of the further consideration of the collection of delinquent water rents.

During the meeting, it developed that in accordance with the Committee's former action, notices had been served upon the delinquents that water would be shut off unless the delinquencies were paid within a specified time.

In discussing the matter with the members of the Committee, it was learned that the unanimous opinion and judgment of the Committee, that the payment of the existing delinquencies had been too long delayed, and in fact, had worked a grave injustice.

The vessel brought in 1793 passengers, most of them American refugees, from Lisbon, Bordeaux and Galway, after a voyage that nearly ended in disaster when a German submarine threatened to sink the ship.

The passengers, suddenly awakened in the early morning darkness, said they strapped on life preservers and assembled in the dining salons under instructions from the officers. From there they were taken on deck and placed in lifeboats. Many of the boats were ready to be lowered when the submarine realized its mistake and allowed them to proceed.

COMPILING AGENCY EDICTS

At Washington the government printing office has just completed the seventh volume of the Code of Federal Regulations. It brings down to the word "Indians," in the alphabetical arrangement of titles, all the regulations having the force of laws promulgated by Federal boards and commissions up to June 1, 1938.

According to Nation's Business, when the compilation is completed, probably in 1941, the National Archives will begin codifying the regulations issued since the work was begun last year.

The Code of Federal Regulations will finally become seventeen volumes, or a total of some 27,000 pages, which is considerably larger than the Encyclopedia Britannica.

When this codification is finished the task of the lawyer in advising his business client as to what he can or cannot do will be simplified to some extent at least. He will first go through the proper titles in the seventeen volumes. Failing to find any prohibition there, he will consult the six supplementary volumes.

If the search still reveals no Federal ruling against his contemplated action, he will then consult the Federal Register and finally run through the mimeographed current orders of the administrative agency involved.

At present, as President Frank Hogan said at the annual meeting of the American Bar Association, a lawyer does not know how to advise his client on business matters. And each of these regulations is the law, exactly as if it had been enacted by Congress. Many carry penalties of fine and imprisonment. All were promulgated by officials who are not elected by the people or responsible directly to the people.

One Federal agency alone makes more quasi-judicial decisions in a year than all the Federal Courts combined, including bankruptcy orders, according to Col. O. R. McGuire of the Bar Association.

There is urgent need for the passage by Congress of the Logan-Walter bill, which would curb these Federal agencies. It would require the holding of hearings before a new regulation was handed down. Above all it would give the victim the right of appeal to the courts and have the facts as well as the law reviewed.

Congress has many important measures before it, but none that is more important than the Logan-Walter bill.

REQUIRED: A STRONG MAN

In this time of crisis involving the country's defense program, with threats of strikes in plants which will play a vital part in that program, the Government should have a Secretary of Labor.

As the office is at present filled, many find it impossible to say that the administration possesses such an official. There were reports not long since that a change was contemplated.

The President should make haste to put in the key place, at the head of the Labor Department, the strongest MAN he can find.

And if it takes all summer, the Senate should pass the House revisions of the Wagner Labor Act.

"The people of America," advises the Kansas City Star, "now have a supreme opportunity to learn what it means to keep their feet on the ground." And their shirts where their shirts ought to be.

History of Paper Making is Given

sheets per day were produced by hand methods. This mill was destroyed by flood in 1799 and William Penn enlisted aid of the whole community in its rebuilding. Crane Company established a mill at Dalton, Mass., in 1801, and still are doing business there. This concern has been famous the world over for its Bank Note (Money) Papers.

"The work of developing the present modern machinery for paper making has been a long, arduous and expensive task. Hand processes continued in use until 1799 when Louis Robert invented a machine with an endless wire cloth on which an even stream of pulp and water was poured as the wire moved slowly forward.

"In 1800 Mr. Didot secured patent rights, took them to England and interested the Fourdrinier Bros., who perfected the machine and in 1807 the first Fourdrinier Machine was patented and erected in a mill in Hertfordshire, England. The Fourdriniers went bankrupt experimenting on this machine, which was the basis of our modern machines of this type, and still carries their name.

"The first beater was developed by the Dutch in the 17th Century, and its modern counterpart is today known as the Hollander or Holland Beater. Like many other devices in that country this beater was driven by a wind-mill.

"Previous to the Holland Beater, rag stock which had been in use since about 1000, was prepared for making in a sheet by hand power mortar and pestle rig, which later was improved by being processed by wind or water and became known as a Stamp Mill.

You perhaps have seen pictures of these old Stamp Mills, where heavy hammers were operated by cams, and pounded rags in the tubs or pans beneath. Beating by this process required some 32 hours, and a mill with 6 pans and 18 hammers could produce 500 pounds of paper per week.

"The basic principles of the Holland Beater of 1670 are still used in our present day mills, and although many widely different machines have been tried, I believe none have been developed which for all around work will take the place of the Hollander for preparation of the all kinds of fibres used in paper making.

"Papers are made more or less water resistant by sizing and resin size was discovered by a German chemist in 1806 or 1807. Animal or glue size was not developed until later in the 18th century. The cylinder machine was devised by a Mr. Dickinson in 1809, and the first Steam Dryers by Mr. Compton in 1821. Other machine improvements followed rapidly and in 1884 a fast news print machine run 200 feet per minute and made 8 tons per day. In 1910 news machines were running 600 feet, making 50-60 tons daily. In 1920 they were turning up 1000 feet, making 100 to 125 tons, and I am told that there are machines in operation today running 1500 feet on lightweight kraft wrappings.

"Such machines are marvels of engineering skill and workmanship, and deliver the sheet from end to reel without it being touched by human hands, in fact men cannot handle the sheet at such speeds.

"Much could be said of various other items of mill equipment necessary in paper production and preparation for the market. I recently saw some very beautiful papers which were printed while still wet on the paper machine before reaching the dryers.

"Watermarking, Calendaring, Coating, Waterfinishing, Calendering Coloring and Sizing, Sheetting, Slitting and Rewinding all require special and extensive machine equipment and highly skilled operators.

"In the modern paper making concerns we find need for men skilled in many and various trades and professions—steam, electrical and hydraulic engineers, machinists and millwrights, and carpenters, masons, pipe fitters, sheetmetal workers, and welders; physicists, chemists, foresters, loggers and sawmill workers, and many allied trades beside the regular paper mill workers.

"Paper is made from many different substances, Cotton, both raw and rags, Manila Fibre (Rope), India Hemp (Bagging), Sisal from Mexico and Central America, Flax, Straw, Cornstalks, Sugar Cane, Corat fibre, Banana fibre, Russian and Italian Hemp, Linen rags.

old or new, as well as wood of many kinds from many places.

"The uses of paper products are almost numberless. In fact your life and mine would be seriously handicapped if we were suddenly bereft of the use of all paper and paper products.

"Other great industries have sprung from the specialized development of raw materials originating with the paper industry. Celluloid, Cellophane and Bakelite are products produced by cellulose decomposition of wood or cotton pulp.

"In fact, no one knows where the end of paper, combined with modern chemistry, will reach. Our clothes and shoes may be made from paper products. I have heard of a breakfast food being produced from wood pulp. Beginning with the diapers and Baby carriage and ending with the Black Paper Crane lined casket, you are in constant daily touch with paper in some of its many and widely diversified forms."

Committee Considers Water Rent Delinquents

to the owners of property who had been promptly paying their water rents, thus keeping this most important utility, owned by the Borough, in successful operation, and the revenue from which bears a very considerable cost of the general operation of the Borough; and further, that utility companies serving the citizens, such as telephone and electric light companies, do not permit delinquencies to exist, but in default of prompt payment, the service is cut off and this appears to be the policy of companies furnishing water to other and adjacent communities.

It was also pointed out that the water rates in Bristol compare favorably with those prevailing in communities similarly situated, and the cost for water service had not been increased since the establishment of the old water company in 1874, notwithstanding the greater increase in the cost of labor, materials and supplies necessary and essential in the furnishing of such water supply, and the added costs incident to filtration and purification of the water supply.

It was the consensus of opinion of the Committee that the Borough had been more than lenient with the consumers in extension of time and payment of delinquencies and the consumers have no cause to complain upon the shutting off of the water service, for ample notice has been served upon them from time to time, since the delinquencies existed.

"Flying Blind" by VERA BROWN

SYNOPSIS

As the national air races were about to start, Judith Aimes in the stand reviled herself for having quarreled with her husband, Tex, one of the contestants, that meaning. What if something happened to him? Her nerves on edge, the fears of her companion, Elsie Stone, for her own flyer husband, Marvin, further aggravate Judith. The latter asked Lee Holt, a flier, how Tex is. Lee said everything was fine but his evident uneasiness disturbs her. He did not mention that he had found Tex sitting in his car with Sonia Winthrop, wealthy aviatrix... Tex who usually was so temperamental that he wanted no one to even speak to him before a race! Soon Judith sees Lee win his race. It is now time for the big event, Judith, watching Tex's ship jockey into position, overhears three girls chattering about Sonia and Tex: "Sonia had a date with him last night," "He's coming to her party tonight," "He's crazy about her, but her everybody is." Judith stiffened. So that was what had been wrong with Lee! The shout, "THEY'RE OFF!" brought Judith's mind back to the race. With tense nerves, she watched the planes round pylon after pylon, Tex in the lead. Suddenly, a roar rose from the crowd. Marvin Stone had crashed! Judith leaves immediately with the distraught Elsie. Michael Dudley, general airlines manager and Tex's employer, puts his car at their disposal. They rush to the hospital.

CHAPTER FOUR

It seemed years before they drew up in front of the hospital. On shaking knees, Judith got out. She tried to persuade Elsie to wait in the car, but she would not listen. "I've got to come, too."

The chauffeur helped Judith with Mrs. Stone. At the information desk, it was Judith who did the talking. The chauffeur persuaded Elsie to sit down at a little distance. The nurse on duty talked to Judith in low tones.

"They brought him in just now. You must wait a little."

Together the three sat down on the straight backed chairs. "Is he here? I must go to him!" The nurse shook her head at Judith.

"Not now. You must wait a little, dear. Just a little. The doctors are with him now."

The nurse left and came back with a glass of water. She tried to persuade Elsie to drink it. Judith knew it contained a sedative. But the girl pushed the glass aside and stood up. "I demand to see my husband!"

"My dear, you must be calm. We're doing everything we can. There must be some x-rays."

The nurse tried to help. Her crisp voice seemed to satisfy Elsie for a few moments. The nurse disappeared again. Judith could see she had gone to use a telephone in an inner office. From the inner office the nurse was signaling to Judith.

"Elsie, I want to telephone. You wait here just a moment."

The nurse took Judith into the hallway. "He's dead. You better get her out of here."

"Yes... When can she see him?" The nurse hesitated, as though sizing up Judith's ability to take it. "I'd say... it wouldn't be wise."

She hesitated again. "His ship caught fire."

Judith swayed for an instant. The nurse caught her arm. "Can you tell her?" Judith's hands flew to her throat. How could she?

"I'll have to!" She leaned against the grey wall for a moment, her hands pressed against it.

"You're all right?"

"Yes." Judith straightened her shoulders. Then she went back to Elsie. The girl jumped up when she saw Judith and ran to her.

"Take me to him." Judith signalled to the chauffeur. "We must go. There are some x-rays to be taken. Come."

Docilely Elsie went between them. They half carried her down the steps into the car.

"Where to?" The chauffeur's voice was husky as he spoke. "Where to? It did not matter now. The only thing which loomed to silly chatter of the three girls, their chatter about Sonia Winthrop. That all seemed so trivial and unimportant now. Why had she ever let anything like that worry her?

But they must go some place. It was Elsie who finally decided things. "I want to go to our room, Judith. Hurry!"

Judith knew so well what was in her heart, she wanted to be where Marvin's few possessions were, where she'd seen him last. When the decision was made Elsie seemed quieter. But her quiet seemed more desperate to Judith than her first frantic tears.

"Let me go! I don't want to live without him!" Elsie sobbed.

Judith's mind was that she must tell this other girl the truth, but how? "Down town." The car moved away. Elsie suddenly turned to Judith: "You aren't lying to me?" She grabbed desperately both of Judith's hands.

"He's dead!" Elsie swayed a little toward Judith. "Yes."

The last vestige of hope... Elsie was stunned. Judith was given a respite for a moment. The wisp of a girl lay back in the seat of the car gasping for breath.

"Take me to him wherever he is!" "I can't, Elsie."

"I can take me to him!" her voice rose hysterically. "No, darling, I can't." She tried to take the girl in her arms but Elsie pushed her away, leaned forward and began to pound the chauffeur on the back.

"Take me to him!" she cried pleadingly. "I can't bear it! I can't!"

The chauffeur drove. Where they went none of them ever knew afterward. Just down back streets, driving and driving. It seemed like years. The light began to fade. They couldn't go on this way indefinitely.

Where could they go? Judith's suite? No. The gang would be converging. Laughing and celebrating. Even if Tex did not win. Elsie would come bounding in. Elsie would sob in a queer monotone, like the whimpering of a hurt animal. Judith no longer could think of the

As they drove up to the hotel, Judith heard the newsboys shouting their extras. She had only a glimpse of the newspapers, enough to tell her Tex had won.

Elsie sat up as they came to the hotel, looking straight ahead. Judith smoothed her hair, put on her hat. They got out. Judith led Elsie into the brightly lit noisy lobby. Some of the gang from the airport were there already. One of the girls called to Judith but she did not stop. A sudden strained silence fell on the crowd as they recognized Elsie Stone. Judith got Elsie's key from the desk, hurried her into the elevator away from the curious though sympathetic eyes.

The elevator stopped at the eighth floor. Judith had trouble with the key. The neat little room which opened onto the court seemed to speak pitifully of Marvin's gallant efforts to make good.

Elsie dropped into a chair, covered her face with her hands. Judith turned on the desk lamp and stepped into the bathroom to get Elsie a glass of water. As Judith came back into the room, Elsie was at the window, climbing up onto the sill.

Judith was at Elsie's side in an instant, dragging her back. Elsie crumpled to the floor. Judith was down beside her, her arms about the other girl.

"Let me go! I don't want to live, not without him!" Elsie sobbed. (To be continued)

PICNIC POINTERS

Summertime is picnic time—time to enjoy good food in the exhilarating atmosphere of soft breezes, sparkling sunshine and bright foliage. Whether you take to the road or serve the outdoor meal in your garden, each new summer season finds picnics more and more fun and less and less work for the one who prepares them. Delicious canned foods and convenient modern picnic equipment are the reason for this. They help you have greater menu variety and more delicious foods as well.

In general, a picnic menu is planned along the same lines as one served in your own dining room. You put together different textures, flavors and colors that make an attractive combination to tempt the appetite and take care of nutritional demands of the family. However, if you're going to cook the food after arriving at the picnic spot, you will want to select dishes conveniently prepared over a fire-place. And if it's to be carried along all ready to eat, that's another thing again.

To Cook on the Spot

Penny-wise barbecued steak is a well flavored mixture of ground round steak and seasoning steeped in rich, spicy sauce as it cooks—just the thing to prepare over an outdoor fire and serve juicy and hot right out of the frying pan in fat buns. A convenient and delicious accompaniment for this picnic special would be canned macaroni in cream sauce with cheese which you just heat and serve. For crispness in this meal, take along a jar of fresh cucumber pickles, and top it off with fresh fruit.

Campfire Barbecued Steak

Combine in pint jar—
1 cup tomato ketchup
1/2 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon pure cider vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar.

Cover and shake until well mixed. Carry along to picnic in this way.

To prepare steak, combine—
1 pound ground round steak
1 teaspoon salt.

Form to resemble a steak one inch thick. Brown on both sides in fat in skillet. Pour the barbecue sauce in jar over the steak. Cover and simmer very slowly 10 to 15 minutes or until the sauce is thick enough to cling to the steak. Serve hot on buns with the sauce.

Carry-Along Picnic

For a picnic supper you carry to the spot already prepared, nothing could be more enjoyed by all concerned than a huge pot of fragrant Boston style oven-baked beans given the added benefit of tomatoes and cheese. A grand thing about this picnic special is that you can get it ready in less than half an hour and still the beans are as mealy and mellow as any baked for hours at home. To keep it temptingly hot until the crucial moment when it is served, just cover and wrap in layers of newspaper when you take it from the oven.

Boston Bean, Tomato and Cheese Casserole

Place in shallow casserole—
1 medium (18-oz.) can oven-baked beans, Boston style.

Arrange over top—
2 medium sized tomatoes, sliced.
Sprinkle with—
Salt and pepper.

Top with—
1/2 cup grated sharp cheese.

Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) about 20 minutes or until heated through and cheese is melted. Serves 3 or 4.

United in Marriage At A Nuptial Mass

At a nuptial high mass celebrated in St. Ann's Church this morning at nine o'clock, Miss Antoinette Lillian Deon, daughter of Mrs. Mary J. Deon, 220 Washington street, was wed to Mr. John T. Cocci, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cocci, 351 Lincoln avenue.

The mass was sung by the church choir, with Joseph Galzerano, Jefferson avenue, organist, accompanying the selections; and also playing the wedding marches from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn. The Rev. Father Peter Pinci performed the ceremony.

Three young women attended the former Miss Deon, they being inclusive of: Miss Antoinette Cianfaro, Washington street, as maid of honor; and the Misses Caroline Rennon, Trenton, N. J., and Virginia Cocci, Lincoln avenue, sister of the groom, as bridesmaids. Serving Mr. Cocci as best man was Andrew Mirabelli, Trenton, N. J.; and the usher for the occasion was Charles Deon, a brother of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Frank Deon, wore a gown of oyster white embossed organza. The full, shirred bodice was set off with a sweet-heart neckline; the sleeves were long; and the floor-length skirt was attached to a wide belt-line. The dress featured a long train. The veil of tulle was attached to a crown of pearls; and her bouquet, in the form of a cross, was composed of gardenias and baby breath, this taking the place of the white prayer book which she carried to the altar. Her slippers were of white kid.

The maid of honor, Miss Cianfaro, was dressed in yellow; and the bridesmaids, Miss Deon and Miss Cocci, in pink and aqua, respectively. The gowns of the trio were fashioned alike. They were of net, with square neckline, short puffed sleeves, and the bodice and long full skirt of each had horizontal inserts of ribbon matching the gowns. Flower head-dress for each matched the tone of the gown, and to this was attached a snood and streamer of net. The maid of honor carried yellow roses and baby breath, and the bridesmaids pink roses and baby breath. The flowers were in the shape of a cross. Each of the attendants wore silver slippers.

The wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother; and this afternoon dinner will take place at the Cocci residence, on Lincoln avenue. The week-end will be spent by Mr. and Mrs. Cocci in New York City. The bride's travelling costume is a navy blue redingote, with red and white polk dot blouse; straw hat of blue and white, and accessories of white. She will wear a corsage of gardenias. The couple will reside in an apartment at Trenton, N. J. Gifts of the bride to her attendants were triple-strand pearls.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Berdelman, who have been residing on North Radcliffe street, left Sunday for Burbank, Cal., where Mr. Berdelman will be employed with the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation.

Mr. Berdelman was formerly with the Hall Aluminum Company. Enroute they will visit relatives in Baltimore, Md., and in Fort Worth, Ind.

Giant Mild Pepper Wins All America Award

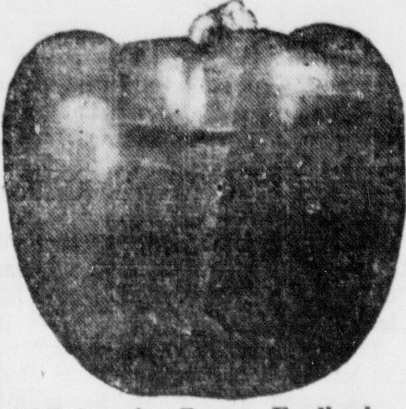

Peppers are easily grown in the garden. They are so tender that seeds usually started indoors and plants set out after danger of frost is over. Then they grow rapidly and produce constantly until the plants are killed in the fall by frost.

Among Americans the favorite of the many types which are available, has come to be a very large, mild fruit, with thick walls, which is green when it first forms, and then turns to a bright red.

In the All America trials for 1940 honorable mention was awarded to a new variety of this type, christened Fordhook. It is very early, bearing fruits in clusters of five to seven and is recommended as an excellent garden variety.

Peppers in this country do not play the part in the menu that they play farther south, where the weather is hot, and the food hotter. But the mild type is becoming increasingly popular, both in the raw state in salads, and in various cooked forms.

It is now time to set the pepper plants raised from early started seed into their permanent positions in the garden. A dozen well-grown plants will yield a good supply of green peppers in late summer and fall. They are easily grown, requiring only a generous supply of moisture for their best development. The pepper is one plant that it is wise to sprinkle. Usually the watering is more efficiently done by taking the nozzle off the hose and letting it gently trickle over the garden and soak into the earth.

Peppers relish a good sprinkling of their foliage and seem to bear more freely for it.

Set them 18 inches apart and give good cultivation. They like a rich heavy soil but thrive in lighter soils if given a copious water supply.

The hot peppers are valuable for relishes and mixed pickles but they should not be grown in the same row with sweet peppers in order to avoid the mistake of getting a hot one mixed with the sweet ones in salad. In the large fruited types better production is insured by pinching out the first or 'king' blossom. Like the cucumber, the plant often stops to develop its first born at the expense of the rest of the progeny

ARE COLORFUL PLAYERS

Visitors Made Home Team
Play 10 Innings To Defeat
Them A Month Ago

Tomorrow the Philadelphia Clowns will make their second appearance at Landreth Ball Park. And if they play a game anything like the one they played here a month ago, the Farmers are in for a tough afternoon.

When the Clowns were here in May it took the Farmers ten innings to win the game 1 to 6, and this score was not made until two were out.

Marty Silverstein will throw them up for the Clowns, and the last time he held Landreth's Seeds to five scattered hits. The Clowns are a very colorful combination and have only lost four ball games this year—three of them were by very close scores. They made a great impression on the crowd the last time they were here and that is why Manager Landreth is bringing them back on Sunday.

Al Carey will be on the mound for the "Farmers" and will be ready to give Marty Silverstein another tough battle.

JONES WINS HURLING DUEL WITH HELVESTON

With "Milt" Jones and Ad Helveston in a fine hurling match, the Odd Fellows broke the winning streak of the Diamond team last evening on the Maple Beach diamond, winning by one run, 3-2.

Jones allowed the Diamanti boys but five hits while the Odds made seven off Helveston. Both hurlers had five strikeouts.

A hit by "Sid" Purcell in the fifth gave the Odd Fellows the triumph. In this inning, Anderson had singled, was advanced to second by Morrell, stood there while VanLenten fled out, and scored on a single to center by Purcell.

One run behind in their final turn with the stick, the Adulansians made a gallant try for victory. McGowan opened by drawing a pass. Antonelli was hit with a pitched ball. Jones then bore down and forced Angelo to fly out to second. Hawkins whiffed, and Hubsch grounded out to first.

Diamond registered its pair of tallies in the second. DelRisi tripled. McGowan grounded out. Harker and Angelo were passed to load the bases and then Hawkins singled to score two.

EDEGLY A. C. JUMPS INTO SECOND PLACE

Taking advantage of misplays by the Voltz-Tenaxo team and hitting in the pinches, the Edgely A. C. jumped into second place in the Bristol Suburban League by handing the Voltz team its sixth straight setback of the campaign. Final score was 9-3.

"Jimmy" Cooper who started on the slab for the Voltz club was shelved from the peak in the third. Schweitzer who relieved him pitched well after he succeeded in retiring the side.

"Bill" Shreda was the winning hurler, holding the assemblers to four hits. When Shreda threw in the last inning he was relieved by Stan Dick.

The leading batter of the evening was Stan Felkner who got out of three.

K. OF C. SOFTBALL TEN DEFEATS PROFY TEAM

Jack Gavegan's Knights of Columbus softball ten continued their climb in the Upper Division of the Bristol Softball League by smothering the Profy team, 21-6, on Leedom's field. The triumph put the Knights close to second place in the loop standing.

Heavy clubbing by the Knights batters plus superb pitching by the reliable "Tommy" Eagan gave the Radcliffe street ten the victory. It was Eagan's third victory in a row and places him among the top-notch throwers in the league.

Leading batters for the winners were Johnny Cole and Daves Fegley while defensively, George Brown and Joe Dolan sparked. For the losers, Vince Profy was outstanding.

GEROME ALLOWS HARRIMAN 2 HITS

"Quindo" Gerome returned to the mound for the Fifth Ward Sporting Club softball team last evening and held the Harriman team to two hits as the Warders chalked up their eighth consecutive win of the Bristol Softball League.

The lone bingles off the underhand twirler were made by Kryven and Van-Aken. Dan DiMidio, of the winners, crashed out a home run with two on base in the third. Pica had two out of three for the warders.

Sunday afternoon, Fifth Ward plays Franklin A. C., leaders of the Upper Division of the league, on Leedom's field.

BRISTOL A. A. NINE TO PLAY TURNERS TEAM

Tomorrow the Bristol A. A. baseball club will line up against the Philadelphia Turners at their field in Edgely, at 3 p. m. Manager Mulholland wants his players to be on hand at 2 p. m.

Dick and Vanzant will work for the A. A. club. Palowez on first; Stallone on second; Hughes, third; Harrison, short; Cahill, left; Hunter, centerfield; Lunck or Felkner, right.

For the Bristol fans who want to see the game, the Turner field is on State Road below the Croydon bridge.

David S. Ingalls, Taft manager, said: "Senator Taft will lead in the number of delegates on the first ballot and every ballot thereafter. Taft has gained strength in the last 24 hours."

J. Russell Sprague, Dewey manager, said:

"This Republican convention is going to nominate a presidential candidate who can win the election in November. That means it is going to nominate Tom Dewey."

"About two weeks ago I estimated that Dewey would have more than 400 votes on the first ballot, with sufficient votes in reserve to assure his nomination. I said then that the estimate was conservative. It is more conservative now than it was then."

"This is a Dewey year—and a Republican year."

Managers of most of the "dark horses" issued statements, declaring the existence of trends to their favorites.

Thus, on the eve of the convention, the name of the nominee was cloaked in as much uncertainty as a month ago, when the primaries ended—with Taft and Dewey claiming a shared role of favorite.

French Cabinet Meets While Armistice Delegation Gives Its Answer To Germans rejection of Chancellor Hitler's Armistice terms.

An air raid alarm was sounded in Berlin at 1:40 a. m. but the all clear signal was given about 40 minutes later. Anti-aircraft fire was heard in the distance.

Later the propaganda ministry announced that enemy planes at 2 a. m. had dropped three incendiary bombs on the Babelsberg Station, near Potsdam. Material damage was termed slight. Anti-aircraft batteries drove off the raiding planes, number of which was not ascertained, the ministry said.

(Babelsberg is the seat of the famous German UFA film concern.)

At the same time, it was announced that nine persons were killed and several injured during an enemy air raid on Essen and the surrounding territory on the night of June 20-21.

Meanwhile, Berlin understood that the French Cabinet is meeting at Bordeaux this morning to decide upon acceptance or rejection of the German armistice terms.

LONDON, June 22.—(INS)—Waves of German planes raided England again during the night, killing three persons and injuring three others but causing little material damage.

Later in the morning, heavy gunfire was reported over Southeastern England.

A joint communique issued by the air and home security ministries stated:

"Three persons were killed and three were wounded. There was little damage. Bombs were dropped sporadically on several east coast counties."

Authorities said that intense defense activities—a barrage of anti-aircraft fire, searchlight work and opposition from British fighters—caused the third air raid on England in four nights to peter out.

"It was a hit and run affair," officials declared.

The German attacks were confined to a smaller area than their recent assaults, but many Britons nevertheless were forced to spend an uncomfortable night huddled in air raid shelters.

Anti-aircraft batteries went into action as soon as the German bombers appeared. Numerous terrific explosions were heard.

BERLIN, June 22.—(INS)—Franco-German armistice conferences were resumed in the Compiegne Woods between 10 and 11 a. m. today. It was stated authoritatively in Berlin.

LONDON, June 22.—(INS)—The British military class of 1910, estimated to number 300,000, registered for military service today, bringing the total number of registered British Reservists to 2,800,000.

LONDON, June 22.—(INS)—Bombs were dropped on Marseilles and on other towns on the French Riviera, the Toulouse radio reported today.

Outstanding Speaker To Make Address Here

curing the services of a nationally known speaker and one who ranks "tops" among public speakers in the United States.

The speaker is to be Major Norman A. Imrie, humorist, thinker and newspaperman.

Major Norman A. Imrie's success as a speaker has been due largely to the remarkable background of his career, as a newsboy, a sawmill hand, sheep-wagon attendant, drygoods store salesman, as a teacher of English at Berea College, of History at Everett High School, Washington, as an instructor for nine years at Culver Military Academy, Indiana.

He earned a degree of B. L. at Berea College; of Ph. B. at the University of Chicago; graduate work at the University of California.

As a volunteer he served four years with the Canadians during the World War and later was attached to the American Army of Occupation as a special lecturer at Coblenz, Germany; is now a major in the United States Reserve.

In Chautauqua and Lyceum lecture work he has spoken in every state of the Union, every province of Canada in Alaska, New Zealand, Hawaii, Fiji, Tahiti, and in half a dozen countries of Europe. He served as a member of the American Legion Good-Will tour of Europe in 1927.

For five years he was Associate-editor of the Columbus Dispatch, Ohio; a director of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, and President of the Columbus Safety Council.

Major Imrie is such a fascinating speaker, and coupled with a natural sense of humor that he has earned a reputation of being one of the finest speakers on the American platform.

At this time of world crisis, his war experience, his grasp of history, his sense of perspective make him an unusually desirable and sought-after interpreter of events.
